Class Prophecy

TWENTY YEARS FROM NOW

Bill Beyer, president of the Italian Winery, at work on a chemical process to take the kick out of his product.

Jim Bale's farm crops taking prizes at the Grape Festival.

Marian Austin, active member of the BPW, running a ten-cent store on the side.

Nancy Scotese, happily married to Joe Spaghetti, restaurant owner and importer of garlic.

Albert Smith, managing editor of the New York Times, 14th assistant vice president of Hearst Publications, and Third World War correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, stationed in the Cannibal Islands.

Elizabeth Ballance, resting on her laurels as Miss America, 1945, turning down the coveted role of Hara O'Scarlett in "Departed on the Breeze".

Geraldine Scranton, head chef at the Stevens, favoring the class reunion dinner with one of her famous 12-pound feather (?) cakes.

Hugh Clow, straw boss on the stupendous WPA project of moving Prospect Hill to make room for the expansion of Paw Paw, which is merging with Lawton to make a huge railway center.

Russell Conolly, auctioneer for the American Tobacco Company, giving a weekly demonstration on the Hit Parade.

Marilyn Burbidge, wealthy spinster, head push of the Kalamazoo Society for the Return of Stray Dogs.

Dorothy and Virginia Chamberlin, active as Red Cross nurses on the battlefield of the Third World War.

Helen Bills, residing at Three Mile Lake, keeps busy mending socks and pant-legs for her family of eight little boys.

Delpha Emery, whistling proprietor of Paw Paw's respected institution, "Hamburger Heaven", has his own special recipe for hamburgers, which may explain his way of making money on them. P. S.—He also owns a horse farm.

Kenneth Ketchum living up to his name as Sheriff of Van Buren County.

George Jungle, also ever true to his name, following the career of an African explorer.

Henry Mederski, brilliant politician, declaring that he favors the "Sixty Dollars Every Tuesday" plan as opposed to the "Thirty Dollars Every Thursday" old age pension. "Why, that's twice as much money," he says, "and besides, you get it two days earlier."

Sam Zager, Broadway gossip commentator, who in his daily 15 minutes on the air relates all the news "not fit to print".

Ingrid Anderson, star center of the All-American Retired Ceiling Painters' Basketball team.

Florence Marcelletti, private secretary to Benito Mussolini, married, with seven little bambinos.

Annie Paynich filling Dorothy Dix's shoes, writing advice to the lovelorn for the Associated Press, running a matrimonial agency on the side.

Helen Schuman and Evelyn Johnson bitter enemies. P. S.—They had designs on the same man.

Margaret Hobden, for some time a grass widow, contemplating marriage to Hiram Hayseed, of Tall Corn, Iowa.

Amelia Birdsall entertained eight of her children and three grandchildren at her 20th wedding anniversary dinner.

Mary Woodman, capable supervisor of the Paw Paw High School Home Economics Department, is installing new cook books, due to discovery of errors in the old ones.

Clara Castle, robust but attractive instructor in ji-jitsu, hopefully searching under her bed for a burglar to practice on.

Gretchen Oas, busy house-to-house vendor of Dr. Brady's latest book, "Vitamins for Vite", which now takes in the whole alphabet.

Gail Titus, first congresswoman elected from the fourth congressional district, who attained her seat through outstanding work in the anti-saloon league.

Bob Kroth, holder of the international tennis championship crown for the last ten years.

August Silvestri basking in the sunshine of his success as All-American Football Star of 1945, spending leisurely winters in Miami and summers in Hickville, Michigan.

Earl Hoodemaker, M.A., Ph.D., D.D., and what-have-you, head of the Latin Department at Columbia University.

Virginia Law, running a nursery school, has given up her vegetable diet, and now enjoys life for the first time in years.

Raymond Gerow, noted scientific farmer, developer of the blind potato, recently appointed County Agricultural Agent.

Arnold Thurber, living example of what 37 years of Guernsey Grade-A can do for one, carrying on the family reputation for Paw Paw's best dairy.

Eleanor Lelli, national typewriting champion, in a slump with a speed of only 99 per.

Dorothy Huey and Anne Jurasick, co-secretaries to J. P. Morgan, Wall Street.

Class Will

We, being the Seniors of Paw Paw High School, located in the county of Van Buren, the State of Michigan, and the United States of America, discover that our existence as Seniors is short, and as a result, of our own free will, have decided to establish a permanent will which will be (if possible) as follows:

To the Senior High students we leave the treasured memory of those pencil sharpeners in the study hall.

The everlasting wish for a perfect class of non-gum chewers we leave with Mr. Lindquist.

To the school we leave the new books we worked so hard for and probably never will get a chance to read.

For those scholars who are tempted to skip, we leave Mr. McDaniels, who (we hope) will watch as closely as he did us.

To Russell Conolly, as an orator, we bestow a soapbox.

The anticipations and headaches of planning a J-Hop, we pass on to the Sophomores.

As a model of good-naturedness, we leave the memory of "Augie".

To the Juniors we leave the Senior year which we hope will not seem as long as it did (or did it?) to us.

To the Freshmen we leave the pleasure (or drudgery) of three more high school years.

To the discomfiture of our athletic fans, we leave that embarrassing record in football, a record that cannot be broken.

We leave Miss Nyland's history classes, to be recommended to those students who have easy subjects in mind.

To the teachers we leave the relief of having gotten rid of us.

To the desks, chairs, and tables we leave the ever increasing marks of wear.

To Miss Kuite we leave an operetta chorus that will not miss a single night of practice and also more much needed boys to take part in future operettas.

To the football team we leave Mr. Lindeman's stirring pep speeches.

The difficulty of collecting dues we leave to the class treasurers.

To the weather man we leave many thanks for the snowstorm we had on our vacation, May 1.

To those people who cannot sing we leave their most popular song, "Oh, Johnny."

To the Journalism class we leave a good supply of stuffed dogs, to be dangled outside the Fifth Grade window.

The belief that some day, they, too, will find that they have to study, we pass on to the Freshmen.

Last, but not least, we wish to leave a final farewell to the entire school.

ORCHESTRA

Organized about seven years ago, with about twelve members, the high school orchestra has grown steadily to its present membership of thirty-three. Besides playing for school plays and various other activities, the orchestra gives a commencement musical each year during commencement week. At this time the full orchestra participates with the graduating members as soloists. From the orchestra personnel, ensemble groups are formed and have been much in demand for school and community affairs.

Alfred Calay, six-day bike rider and speed demon midget auto racer, owner of the latest Kentucky Derby winner, proudly displays a small black mustache, his latest achievement.

Bob Hood, Chief of the Paw Paw Volunteer Fire Department, spending his spare time while not actively engaged in swinging the fire truck around corners, playing cards under the shade tree down at the fire station.

Frank Nelson has fitted out the good ship S. S. Paw Paw, and embarked on a voyage to clear the Atlantic of left-over mines, and incidentally to pick up any sunken treasure he may catch sight of through his specially designed glass bottom. Frank Lelli serves as first mate, Walter Lula and Chester Kaphsinski, deck hands.

Ila Stoughton, minister's wife, spends her Sundays at Sawdust Center, Iowa, entertaining the town's respected car manufacturer, Bob Mearing, at dinner.

Donald Thoms has a lucrative position as Chicago night club bouncer.

Chester Palasinski, hefty policeman, efficiently directing traffic at Woodward Avenue, Detroit, hopes to be remembered in the will of some old lady he has assisted across the street.

Madeleine Yukich and Laura Butus, proprietors of "Ye Olde Beautie Shoppe," Paw Paw, Michigan, specializing in hair-do's for those past forty, are adding a gent's parlor to their establishment, for the accommodation of traveling salesmen, etc., in need of a manicure or hair treatment.

Ella Mae Carrington, married to a big shot from Texas Corners, remembers her telephone operator days with longing. Her twin daughters she has named "Earphony" and "Switchboardia." . . .

Emma Mae Cameron, Marian Schallhorn, Jennie Weglarz, and Elizabeth McGuire form the popular chorus girl team, "The Swing Sisters" now all the rage on Broadway.

Steve Diljack, so the papers say, has smashed the five-hour record for airplane crossing between New York and Liverpool, with a new one of but four hours, fifty-four minutes, and thirty-two seconds.

Dorothy Richardson, teacher at the Clapp School House for the last 20 years, active in the Christian Church Ladies' Aid.

Norma Jean Glidden's fame as glamorous platinum blonde of the screen rivals that of the late Jean Harlow.

DRAMATICS

The Speech group is made up of members of the Thespian Dramatic Club, the debating squad, and those who represented the school in speech contests. The debating squad took part in eight league debates in addition to 25 practice debates, won the elimination wall plaque trophy, and went as far is the third elimination debate.

The Thespians put on a one-act play for the Paw Paw and Dowagiac schools and also sponsored a program of dramatic and humorous declamations in which every member took part. This program was concluded in an invitational contest with State High and Mattawan.

Our school sent eight representatives to the National Forensic League Tournament at Terre Haute, Ind., where they took part in original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, oratorical, humorous and dramatic declamations, and also a student congress where three students qualified for finals. The school also entertained the Sub-District contest for the Michigan High School Forensic Association, winning first place in original oratory, first in extemporaneous speaking, and second in declamation.
